Index to Volume 67

L
11
E93
v.67
1959

AUTHOR INDEX

Anderson, C. Arnold.—Educational Dilemmas in the USSR, 26–44

Barton, George E., Jr.—John Dewey: Too Soon a Period Piece? 128–38

Campbell, Roald F.—Educational Administration: Is It Unique? 461–68
Campbell, Roald F.—The Folklore of Local School Control, 1–16
Chase, Francis S.—The Response of the Schools to the Challenges of the Twentieth Century, 17–25
Clapp, C. Mabel.—Houston Challenges the Gifted History Student, 106–9
Cohn, Werner.—On the Language of Lower-Class Children, 435–40
Connell, William F.—Excellence in General Education, 375–86
Cremin, Lawrence A.—John Dewey and the Progressive-Education Movement, 1915–1952, 160–73

De Boer, John J.—What Shall We Teach in High-School English? 305–19
Diamond, Leon.—An Explanation of Democracy, 441–47
Dunkel, Harold B.—Dewey and the Fine Arts, 229–45
Dunkel, Harold B.—The Sniper's Nest: Brightening the Cosmos, 115–16
Impressive, 116–17
Dewey in 2059? 368–69
Dunkel, Harold B., and McCaul, Robert L.—Dewey: 1859–1959, 123–24
Dunkel, Harold B., and McCaul, Robert L. (editors).—Dewey Centennial Issue, 123–280

Elvin, H. L.—The Secondary-School Curriculum in the Changing Twentieth Century, 45–59

Fox, Robert P.—Recruiting for the Professions, 344–49

Gowin, D. Bob.—Is Dewey's Experimentalism Compatible with Gestalt Theory? 195–212
Gullahorn, John T.—Teaching by the Case Method, 448–60

Harris, Dale B.—Life Problems and Interests of Adolescents in 1935 and 1957, 335–43

Israel, Matthew L.—Educational Redesign: A Proposal, 292–304

Jordan, James A., Jr.—Interest, Choice, and Desirability, 174–85

Kelly, Harry C.—National Program for Education in the Sciences, 396–408
Kerlinger, Fred N.—Practicality and Educational Research, 281–91
Kimpton, Lawrence A.—Dewey and Progressive Education, 125–27

Levit, Martin.—The Context of a Contextualist Philosophy, 246–57
Loree, M. R., and Sawin, E. I.—Broadening the Base in Evaluation, 79–92

McCaul, Robert L.—Dewey's Chicago, 258–80
McCaul, Robert L., and Dunkel, Harold B.—Dewey: 1859–1959, 123–24
McCaul, Robert L., and Dunkel, Harold B. (editors).—Dewey Centennial Issue, 123–280
McClellan, James E.—Dewey and the Concept of Method: Quest for the Philosopher's Stone in Education, 213–28
Morris, Bruce R., and Will, Robert E.—The Student Attitude Survey as a Teaching Aid, 350–60

Nelson, Robert L., M.D.—Psychiatric Needs of Graduate Students, 93–105

Otto, Henry J.—Grouping Pupils for Maximum Achievement, 387–95

Rippa, S. Alexander.—Dissemination of the Free-Enterprise Creed to American Schools, 409–21

Sawin, E. I., and Loree, M. R.—Broadening the Base in Evaluation, 79–92

Schwab, Joseph J.—The "Impossible" Role of the Teacher in Progressive Education, 139–59

Seeley, John R.—The Social Sea around Us, 422–34

Stivers, Eugene H.—Motivation for College in High-School Girls, 320–34

Thelen, Herbert A.—Classroom Grouping of Students, 60–78

Will, Robert E., and Morris, Bruce R.—The Student Attitude Survey as a Teaching Aid, 350–60

Williams, Jay.—Dewey and the Idea of a Science of Education, 186–94

TITLE AND SUBJECT INDEX

Achievement:
Grouping Pupils for Maximum Achievement, Henry J. Otto, 387–95

Administration:
Educational Administration: Is It Unique? Roald F. Campbell, 461–68

Adolescents:
Life Problems and Interests of Adolescents in 1935 and 1957, Dale B. Harris, 335–43

Attitude survey:
The Student Attitude Survey as a Teaching Aid, Bruce R. Morris and Robert E. Will, 350–60

British education:
The Secondary-School Curriculum in the Changing Twentieth Century, H. L. Elvin, 45–59

Broadening the Base in Evaluation, E. I. Sawin and M. R. Loree, 79–92

Careers:
Motivation for College in High-School Girls, Eugene H. Stivers, 320–34
Recruiting for the Professions, Robert P. Fox, 344–49

Case method:
Teaching by the Case Method, John T. Gullahorn, 448–60

Classroom Grouping of Students, Herbert A. Thelen, 60–78

College:
Motivation for College in High-School Girls, Eugene H. Stivers, 320–34

Conferences and Workshops at the University of Chicago, 118–20
Conference on Library Service, 119
Conference on Reading, 118

The Context of a Contextualist Philosophy, Martin Levit, 246–57

Control of schools:
The Folklore of Local School Control, Roald F. Campbell, 1–16

Counseling:
Psychiatric Needs of Graduate Students, Robert L. Nelson, M.D., 93–105

Curriculum:
The Secondary-School Curriculum in the Changing Twentieth Century, H. L. Elvin, 45–59

Democracy:
An Explanation of Democracy, Leon Diamond, 441–47

Design for education:
Educational Redesign: A Proposal, Matthew L. Israel, 292–304

Dewey, John
The Context of a Contextualist Philosophy, Martin Levit, 246–57
Dewey: 1859–1959, Harold B. Dunkel and Robert L. McCaul, 123–24
Dewey Centennial Issue edited by Robert L. McCaul and Harold B. Dunkel, 123–280
Dewey and the Concept of Method: Quest for the Philosopher's Stone in Education, James E. McClellan, 213–28

Dewey and the Fine Arts, Harold B. Dunkel, 229–45
Dewey and the Idea of a Science of Education, Jay Williams, 186–94
Dewey and Progressive Education, Lawrence A. Kimpton, 125–27
Dewey in 2059? in the Sniper's Nest, Harold B. Dunkel, 368–69
Dewey's Chicago, Robert L. McCaul, 258–80
The "Impossible" Role of the Teacher in Progressive Education, Joseph J. Schwab, 139–59
Interest, Choice, and Desirability, James A. Jordan, Jr., 174–85
Is Dewey's Experimentalism Compatible with Gestalt Theory? D. Bob Gowin, 195–212
John Dewey: Too Soon a Period Piece? George E. Barton, Jr., 128–38
John Dewey and the Progressive-Education Movement, 1915–1952, Lawrence A. Cremin, 160–73
Dissemination of the Free-Enterprise Creed to American Schools, S. Alexander Rippa, 409–21

Educational Administration: Is It Unique? Roald F. Campbell, 461–68
Educational Dilemmas in the USSR, C. Arnold Anderson, 26–44
Educational Redesign: A Proposal, Matthew L. Israel, 292–304
English:
What Shall We Teach in High-School English? John J. De Boer, 305–19
Evaluation:
Broadening the Base in Evaluation, E. I. Sawin and M. R. Loree, 79–92
Excellence in General Education, William F. Connell, 375–86
An Explanation of Democracy, Leon Diamond, 441–47

Fine arts:
Dewey and the Fine Arts, Harold B. Dunkel, 229–45
The Folklore of Local School Control, Roald F. Campbell, 1–16
Free-enterprise creed:
Dissemination of the Free-Enterprise Creed to American Schools, S. Alexander Rippa, 409–21

General education:
Excellence in General Education, William F. Connell, 375–86
Gifted students:
Houston Challenges the Gifted History Students, C. Mabel Clapp, 106–9
Graduate students:
Psychiatric Needs of Graduate Students, Robert L. Nelson, M.D., 93–105
Grouping:
Classroom Grouping of Students, Herbert A. Thelen, 60–78
Grouping Pupils for Maximum Achievement, Henry J. Otto, 387–95

History:
Houston Challenges the Gifted History Student, C. Mabel Clapp, 106–9

The "Impossible" Role of the Teacher in Progressive Education, Joseph J. Schwab, 139–59
Interest, Choice, and Desirability, James A. Jordan, Jr., 174–85
Interests of adolescents:
Life Problems and Interests of Adolescents in 1935 and 1957, Dale B. Harris, 335–43
International education:
Educational Dilemmas in the USSR, C. Arnold Anderson, 26–44
The Secondary-School Curriculum in the Changing Twentieth Century, H. L. Elvin, 45–59
Is Dewey's Experimentalism Compatible with Gestalt Theory? D. Bob Gowin, 195–212

John Dewey: Too Soon a Period Piece? George E. Barton, Jr., 128–38
John Dewey and the Progressive-Education Movement, 1915–1952, Lawrence A. Cremin, 160–73

Language of lower-class children:
On the Language of Lower-Class Children, Werner Cohn, 435–40

Life Problems and Interests of Adolescents in 1935 and 1957, Dale B. Harris, 335–43
Local school control:
The Folklore of Local School Control, Roald F. Campbell, 1–16

Motivation for College in High-School Girls, Eugene H. Stivers, 320–34

National Program for Education in the Sciences, Harry C. Kelly, 396–408
Needs:
Psychiatric Needs of Graduate Students, Robert L. Nelson, M.D., 93–105

On the Language of Lower-Class Children, Werner Cohn, 435–40

Political quest:
The Social Sea around Us, John R. Seeley, 422–34
Practicality and Educational Research, Fred N. Kerlinger, 281–91
Pressure groups and education:
Dissemination of the Free-Enterprise Creed to American Schools, S. Alexander Rippa, 409–21
Prestige, Academic:
Impressive, in the Sniper's Nest, Harold B. Dunkel, 116–17
Problems of adolescents:
Life Problems and Interests of Adolescents in 1935 and 1957, Dale B. Harris, 335–43
Professions:
Recruiting for the Professions, Robert P. Fox, 344–49
Progressive education:
Dewey and Progressive Education, Lawrence A. Kimpton, 125–27
The "Impossible" Role of the Teacher in Progressive Education, Joseph J. Schwab, 139–59
John Dewey and the Progressive-Education Movement, Lawrence A. Cremin, 160–73
Psychiatric Needs of Graduate Students, Robert L. Nelson, M.D., 93–105

Recruiting for the Professions, Robert P. Fox, 344–49

Research in education:
Practicality and Educational Research, Fred N. Kerlinger, 281–91
The Response of the Schools to the Challenges of the Twentieth Century, Francis S. Chase, 17–25

Science of education:
Dewey and the Idea of a Science of Education, Jay Williams, 186–94
Sciences:
National Program for Education in the Sciences, Harry C. Kelly, 396–408
The Secondary-School Curriculum in the Changing Twentieth Century, H. L. Elvin, 45–59
Social class and language:
On the Language of Lower-Class Children, Werner Cohn, 435–40
The Social Sea around Us, John R. Seeley, 422–34
Soviet education:
Educational Dilemmas in the USSR, C. Arnold Anderson, 26–44
The Student Attitude Survey as a Teaching Aid, Bruce R. Morris and Robert E. Will, 350–60

Teacher recruitment:
Brightening the Cosmos, in the Sniper's Nest, Harold B. Dunkel, 115–16
Teaching by the Case Method, John T. Gullahorn, 448–60

University of Chicago Dinner at Atlantic City, 483

Values:
The Social Sea around Us, John R. Seeley, 422–34
Vocational guidance:
Recruiting for the Professions, Robert P. Fox, 344–49

What Shall We Teach in High-School English? John J. De Boer, 305–19
Workshops at the University of Chicago, 119–20
Workshop in Elementary Education, 119
Workshop in Language Arts, 120
Workshop in Reading, 120

BOOK REVIEWS

By Author

Abrahamson, Julia, A Neighborhood Finds Itself, 469–73
Reviewed by Herbert A. Thelen

Brubacher, John S., and Rudy, Willis, Higher Education in Transition: An American History: 1636–1956, 365–67
Reviewed by Manning M. Pattillo

Counts, George S., The Challenge of Soviet Education, 110–11
Reviewed by C. Arnold Anderson

Gross, Neal, Who Runs Our Schools? 111–14
Reviewed by Donald J. McCarty

Halpin, Andrew W. (editor), Administrative Theory in Education, 478–82
Reviewed by John Walton

Jones, Howard Mumford, Reflections on Learning, 473–78
Reviewed by Edwin H. Sauer

Pålsson, Elis, Gymnasiers Rekrytering och Lokalisering [Spatial Patterns in the Recruitment of Gymnasium Students], 361–64
Reviewed by C. Arnold Anderson

Rudy, Willis, and Brubacher, John S., Higher Education in Transition: An American History: 1636–1956, 365–67
Reviewed by Manning M. Pattillo

Schmidt, George P., The Liberal Arts College: A Chapter in American Cultural History, 365–67
Reviewed by Manning M. Pattillo

By Title

Administrative Theory in Education edited by Andrew W. Halpin, 478–82
Reviewed by John Walton

The Challenge of Soviet Education by George S. Counts, 110–11
Reviewed by C. Arnold Anderson

Gymnasiers Rekrytering och Lokalisering [Spatial Patterns in the Recruitment of Gymnasium Students] by Elis Pålsson, 361–64
Reviewed by C. Arnold Anderson

Higher Education in Transition: An American History: 1636–1956 by John S. Brubacher and Willis Rudy, 365–67
Reviewed by Manning M. Pattillo

The Liberal Arts College: A Chapter in American Cultural History by George P. Schmidt, 365–67
Reviewed by Manning M. Pattillo

A Neighborhood Finds Itself by Julia Abrahamson, 469–73
Reviewed by Herbert A. Thelen

Reflections on Learning by Howard Mumford Jones, 473–78
Reviewed by Edwin H. Sauer

Who Runs Our Schools? by Neal Gross, 111–14
Reviewed by Donald J. McCarty

FROM THE PUBLISHERS

121; 370–73; 484–89